Four to five prisoners occupied each room. Near Camp #1 was a larger hospital called "Mezhduoblastnaya bol-5. nitsa." It was made up of four, one-story, wooden buildings, each about $35-40 \times 15$ meters. They were all alike. One was for internal diseases, one for surgery, one for TB, and one was used by the invalids who worked in the hospital. Each building had one Chief and some specialists. All the Lidya Soviet doctors were women. 25X1 BARISHOVA, ALEXANDROVA, BASINA, and MICHELSEN. Two of the prisoners were doctors: One was a German 25X1 named ISCHTAM (Eichbaum?) who had only one leg. He was an excellent surgeon. There The other was a Soviet named Yuri VLADIMIROVICH. 25X1 , who was a specialist was also a Russian Jew, "SHAPIRI," in internal diseases. The hospital was well equipped, had X-ray machines, and other equipment. It was quite clean, and the sick each had a mattress and two blankets. However, food was insufficient -- only about 500 grams 25X1 of bread per day. in the camps with criminals, everybody, including 6. the internal guards, was afraid of the "vori." Often the overseer (nadziratel) worked with the criminals, sharing their loot. For instance, when new prisoners arrived, they were robbed of their clothes and the nadziratel was the only one who was free to go to town where he could sell them.
